THE PROBLEM

You don't have an information problem.
You have a signal problem.

The warning signs rarely arrive as one obvious alert. They appear in pieces — across financials, litigation, cyber, sanctions, news, regulation and the world around the company. SIGNAL connects the dots before the pieces become the headline.

HOW IT WORKS

Know what changed.

Intelligence signals curated from ~900 global data sources — regulators, courts, filings, exchanges, cyber authorities, news, markets, shipping and geopolitical sources.

Know what matters.

Every item is tied to the right legal entity, tested for materiality and consolidated into one event. Duplicate and low-value noise is filtered before it reaches you.

Know where to act.

Severity-ranked, read against your portfolio and summed up in one daily brief — one click from the original source.

PRICED FOR THE PORTFOLIO, NOT THE PERSON

10 users or 1,000. One price.

You pay for the companies you monitor, never for the seat. One subscription replaces a stack of feeds. Plans from $1,575 a month.

BUILT BY A PRACTITIONER

Built by someone who has sat in the chair.

Thirty years inside Morgan Stanley, J.P. Morgan, Merrill Lynch, Barclays, SMBC and Bloomberg, shaped around one question: what do I need to know before I am blindsided?

Signal. Not noise.

ONE COMPANY. EVERY ANGLE THAT MATTERS.

The company is the story. SIGNAL sees the whole picture.

Financial health and sanctions are only two lenses. SIGNAL connects the financial, cyber, legal, regulatory, corporate, geopolitical, supply-chain and economic picture around the same company.

Are we watching the right company?

Every name resolved to its registered legal entity. Namesakes rejected. A parent event shown on the subsidiary you use.

Is legal risk changing the story?

Litigation ranked by what the event is, not how loudly it is reported, with your company marked plaintiff or defendant.

Has their cyber risk changed?

Actively exploited vulnerabilities, breach records and outside-in security posture.

Is a regulator already on to them?

Enforcement actions from the regulators themselves, plus rule changes and requirements by sector and jurisdiction.

What changed inside the company?

Mergers, restructurings, leadership exits, board changes and credit ratings from primary filings.

What is the market hearing?

Adverse news and social signals, held to independent sources and tested for materiality.

What does conduct tell us?

Conduct risk built from recorded incidents and source evidence — not a bought-in rating.

Who do they depend on?

Fourth-party and supply-chain dependencies identified across 18 source types, with relationship direction mapped.

Where could disruption reach them?

Delivery locations matched to travel advisories, health notices and disaster alerts. Ports and shipping lanes. Country profiles.

What is changing around them?

World news, official advisories, U.S. economic intelligence, macro trends and daily market indicators.

What happens if they fail?

Risk simulation: pick a company, run the failure, see what it touches.

What matters first?

A daily executive briefing with consolidated events, prioritized by company and severity.

ASK SIGNAL

A thirteenth question? Ask in plain English. SIGNAL answers from your own portfolio evidence and shows where the answer came from.

DUE DILIGENCE

Every company gets a standard or enhanced due-diligence level, and SIGNAL says plainly which factors it could not assess.

Not separate feeds. One intelligence picture.
